

The flow chart below shows how national examination papers are marked in Someland. Write a report for a university lecturer describing the information below.

The marking procedure for national examination papers in Someland is revealed by the flow chart.

First and foremost, it can be apparently seen that after gathering the papers, the Reading and Listening papers are thoroughly checked by an administrator and then accumulated properly. However, the writing papers are entertained in a different way. After collecting the answer sheets, the writing papers are marked by an expert examiner.

Moving on to the next step, the scores are then sent to an administrator for collation; on the other hand, the exam papers are sent to an examination board. Finally, the board follows one of the two steps, either it reserves the papers or reevaluates them for the endmost upshot.
